ALABAMA POWER GIVEN AWARD FOR SERVICE RECORD

Nebraska Is Second With Michigan Next In Contest

JUDGES SELECTED FROM PUBLISHERS

Example of Company Urged Followed By Other Companies

The Alabama Power Company was today awarded the Forbes Magazine Public Service Cup in a national contest conducted to determine which light and power company in America rendered the most constructive public service in local territory in 1924 according to word received at the Albany-Decatur office. The award was made after hundreds of exhibits had been examined by judges, in whose opinion the Alabama Power Company had far exceeded all others in its work not only in developing and distributing electric energy but in its fair dealings with the public and its efforts to build up its state in many ways. The judges were Bruce Barton, of Durstine and Osborn; Thomas F. Logan, of Thos. F. Logan, Inc.; Philip Thompson, Publicity Manager, Eastern Electric Company; Louis Wiley, New York "Times"; M. C. Robbins, "Advertising Fortnightly"; Roy Dickinson, "Printers' Ink"; and C. Forbes, Editor of Forbes magazine. The cup and certificate of award will be formally presented to the company by Mr. Forbes, at the national convention of the National Electric Light association, in San Francisco, on the night of June 17th.

The committee was greatly impressed with the variety of methods employed by the winning accomplished. The company laid but little stress upon the various agencies it employed in rendering service but in a most comprehensive manner told the story of its achievements. The work of the company in boosting its home state irrespective of the territory it serves, its efforts to be of material service to the farmers in extending its lines to rural communities and making possible without remuneration to itself the availability of calcium arsenate for boll weevils eradication were outstanding and unique contributions to service. In permitting home people to invest their savings in the company, and its contributions to education institutions played no little part in winning the coveted honor.

In the opinion of the judges, and which was so expressed in their written decision, the work of Alabama Power company in rendering efficient service at the lowest possible costs to the people could well be adopted at a profit by other similar public service companies.

Lewisburg Minister Is Heard In Splendid Sermon

The evangelistic services at Willsborough Presbyterian church are increasing in interest.

Last night notwithstanding the threatening storm, a goodly number heard a strong sermon by Rev. W. J. Shelton, of Lewisburg, Tenn. His theme was "God's Word its place and power in the individual life, in the home, and in the church."

A daily vacation Bible school is being conducted each morning in the church. About forty boys and girls are in session this morning.

Mrs. A. N. Penland and Mrs. H. M. Layman are in charge. The song service begins each evening at 7:30. A feature of the evening services is music by the Ninth Street Methodist church quartette.

NEW YORK, June 10—As a result of various conferences in New York, Clarence Darrow, Chicago criminal lawyer, and Brainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, have been chosen to assist in the defense of John T. Scopes, Dayton Tenn., high school teacher, charged with violating the Tennessee law prohibiting the teaching of evolution in the schools.

Darrow and Colby are expected to lose the case in a spectacular fashion at first, preparatory to the state and United States supreme court passing on the constitutionality of the law.

Dudley Field Malone, who with Darrow, first volunteered his services was delegated to keep the home fires burning in New York and with Samuel Rosensohn, of the legal staff of the Civil Liberties Union, will engage with Malone in research, digging up previous trials of scientists as far back, it was said as Gallo who got into trouble by announcing that the world moved around the sun.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 10.—K. M. Moore, a traveling painter, was reported at a hospital today to have an excellent chance for recovery, following a fall this morning from a scaffold, seven stories high.

Moore was working on the annex of the Tutwiler hotel here when his foot slipped and he fell into the brick alley, far below, witnesses say.

He was conscious when picked up, but seemingly suffering considerable pain.

Hospital authorities reported that the extent of his injuries were compound fractures of both legs and numbers of bruises and scratches.

All But Two Students Are Eliminated From Any Suspicion

BATON ROUGE, La., June 10.—Having eliminated all but two of the long list on whom the shadow of suspicion fell, police appeared confident today that an arrest will be made that will lead to a solution of the mysterious slaying of O. B. Turner, an instructor at the Louisiana state university, Sunday morning.

Chief of Police King-Strenzke said he was confident that the mystery would be solved and that developments might be expected during the day, and that no one would name any individual suspect.

Fingerprints of the remainder of the agronomy class, 23, were taken today for comparison with those found yesterday on the hallway where the instructor's body was found.

PALL OF GLOOM HANGS OVER CITY

High School Students Leave Notes In Stretch of Woods

(Associated Press)

WELLESLEY FARMS, Mass., June 10—A pall of tragedy hung over this town today, for pretty 16 year old Priscilla Amidon died from a bullet wound last night and her one time chum, Sterling Mills, lay seriously wounded in a Newton hospital.

Only yesterday schoolmates saw them walking toward the woods together. It was the last time they saw Priscilla Amidon alive.

A suicide pact, half accomplished or a murder and attempted suicide, these were the alternative theories upon which the police are working.

They found Mills, a junior in the Wellesley high school, lying beside the Glenn Road yesterday. A hundred yards further on they came upon the unconscious form of the girl, a pupil in the junior high school a bullet wound in her head and her father's revolver by her side, with three shots fired from it.

The youth, police say told them, shot himself "because I had to."

The girl had told a schoolmate that morning that she would never be in the school again. She never regained consciousness before she died and only Mills' testimony can solve the mystery.

The police said last night that they were convinced the shooting was the result of a suicide agreement and that the girl had probably shot herself, the boy then turning the gun on himself. They had been friends for years and had been keeping company for the past month.

Early reports from the hospital said the condition of the youth was little changed.

Medical Examiner George O. West, of Middlesex county, admitted that notes written by the two had been found, but refused to disclose their contents.

FIVE GREAT THINGS OF LIFE IS SUBJECT

Large Crowd Braves Rain To Hear Talk At Tent Meeting

Despite the stormy night a large crowd came to hear H. L. Calhoun again last night at the big tent. Mr. Calhoun took as his subject "The Five Great Things in the Christian Life" which are as follows: "Watch Ye" many beautiful lessons were brought out, that a Christian should watch lest he fall into temptations.

Watch for the opportunities of life that you may do all the good that you can to tell the people you can in all the ways that you can.

The second great thing, "Stand fast in the faith," Mr. Calhoun stressed the importance of a Christian standing in the faith, let people know that you stand for Christ and his teaching.

The third great thing "quit you like men," be a man in all things. He showed the need of men in the service of the Lord, to do the work that is to be done, that men and men alone can do this work.

The fourth great thing "be strong" because of the urgent need of work to be done against the forces of the devil it takes strong men to do this much needed work. The only way to be strong is by exercising, eat the right kind of food, keep your self free from the disease of sin.

The last but not the least, "let all that you do be done in love."

RIOT AS CROWDS ATTACK KLAN CARS

Missiles Are Hurlled and Clubs Are Weilded During Fight

(Associated Press)

CLINTON, Mass., June 10.—Thirty-two men were under arrest here today as a result of a riot after an outdoor meeting of the Ku Klux Klan.

Scores apparently were injured in fighting which was not quelled until 20 state police had charged a battling crowd. Only three men, however were hurt severely enough to be treated by physicians. They said they were innocent victims, being the target for missiles, while passing through the town in an automobile truck.

Fifteen clubs, 12 pieces of lead pipe rubber hose, a revolver used in the battle were seized by police.

The riot started shortly after midnight, when a procession of more than 300 Klansmen's cars was suddenly attacked. As the first car hove into sight, a crowd rushed it throwing bricks and swinging clubs. State troopers who had patrolled the grounds, surrounding Brewster field in Berlin, where a Klan meeting had been held, were escorting the Klan machines when the riot started.

Occupants of the Klan machines jumped to the ground and within a short time fist fights were numerous, while troopers swung clubs in a vain effort to keep order. Rocks and clubs flew right and left, flower pots, porch chairs and everything movable in the vicinity were used in the battle.

After sometime state and local police gained control of the situation and escorted the Klan cars out of town.

COMMISSION URGES ACTION IN CONGRESS AT DECEMBER TERM

Short Lease Might Be Stumbling Block In Disposition

TWO REASONS FOR OPPOSITION

War Department Today Advised of Reasons For Position

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 10—Opposition to any short time lease of the power facilities at Muscle Shoals was expressed by the President's Muscle Shoals commission, in a letter transmitted today to the war department.

The commission, meeting in first regular session, decided that if the war department decides to sell power, that may be developed before congress takes final action on the question, it has that authority without further warrant from the commissioners.

Official information before the commission is that the production of power will be delayed well beyond July 1, the time at which it had been expected that some units of the great power plant on the Tennessee river could be put in operation.

Turbines and generators are yet to be installed and some members of the commission said it might be a month or two, or even longer, before power in any commercial quantities would be steadily available.

Members of the commission are opposed to any short time lease for two major reasons; that the company obtaining such a lease would have advantages, if private operation is decided upon, and that with revenue accruing to the government from such a lease, there might be a disposition by congress to delay disposition of the plant at the coming session.

With the plant entirely ready for operation with the convening of congress in December, the commissioners feel that the problem of ultimate disposition will be so urgent that congress will act without any unnecessary delay.

None of the commissioners would indicate what their recommendations to the President would be as to final disposition or operation will be.

Some of them at least, take the view that the project should be regarded primarily as a national defense project in times of war and a fertilizer project in times of peace. They do not believe that power should be regarded as the controlling factor.

Should the ultimate decision be for government operations, some of the commissioners are of the opinion that all the power that might be developed could be utilized by the government in the manufacture of materials for national defense, as well as nitrates.

Similarly they are of the same opinion that any concern leasing the plant could dispose of the power without injuring power companies already in operation in the adjacent territory.

Wants Settlement

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 10—The Muscle Shoals question should be settled on a fair basis to relieve uncertainty in the fertilizer industry, Gustave Ober Jr., president of the National Fertilizer Association, declared today in an address to the association here.

"Muscle Shoals is still an unsolved problem," he said, "which has been a source of untold trouble to us and has in part, prevented us from rendering the service we should and are most willing to give."

Ober declared that the fertilizer industry was antagonistic to the development of the property in no way whatever.

"We have objected to government operation of this plant," he said, "as being opposed to the principle of government under which we live. We have opposed subsidized operation of the plant as being utterly and entirely unfair, as well as unnecessary in view of the over-production that at present exists."

bring her pain—to now Gibbs Josselyn well. No, let her have this day's adventures to keep, an unclouded memory, and let the story end here. She had played her part fairly, and he would play his, too.
There was barely time at the train for laughing goodbyes. Ellen glanced back when she had passed the gate; he was watching her, and as their eyes met he gave her his disturbing smile again, and again raised his hat.
"He's thirty—or more, and every woman he knows is in love with him," said Ellen to herself, settling down in the train. "It's been wonderful—it's been heavenly, and I'll never see him again!"

woman exclaiming over descriptions of meals and clothes, the old man and the young anxious to grasp exactly what happened to the car, and Ellen sat up after the others had gone to bed and wrote a pretty note of thanks to Mrs. Rose. She said that she and Mr. Josselyn had had a "spill in the snow," but that fortunately no harm was done; it had been a lovely run.

After the letter was gone she sat reflecting; could she with any propriety write Gibbs? She knew she could not. She knew that he would read her motive in doing so as clearly as if she wrote the words: "I like you. I'm not married, and you're not married. I don't want to let you go." She gave up the idea, and put her letter to Mrs. Rose by the clock, to be mailed in the morning, and went to bed, twisting and turning because the wrenched shoulder had begun to ache, but finally falling into deep, exhausted sleep between the cold sheets, too tired to dream.

Joe mailed the letter the next morning, and stopped at the drug store on the way back, for Ellen could not twist her sore shoulder into her dress, and came downstairs in her wrapper.

Her aunt and the captain prophesied that it would get better immediately, and a day or two went by. Ellen lay patiently through the long daytime hours, and wept with pain in the night.

Mrs. Baldwin persisted that it was either a cold in the shoulder, or a "wrench," or "the stiffneck." But she sent Joe for the doctor after breakfast, and Ellen felt better when she knew Joe had gone. Her aunt aired the dining room, anticipating the call, and had everything in order long before nine. But it was almost noon when the busy doctor came in.

That was the beginning, Ellen, who had never been in a doctor's hands before, smiled up at him uncomfortably as his skilled fingers pressed and explored. She made a rueful face when she heard her fate. She must lie absolutely still for an unspecified number of days, perhaps a week. Mrs. Bradley afterward told some intimates that she mistrusted Ellen was in for a bad spell when Doctor Older, who was fresh from the city hospital himself, said that he was going to see an old doctor in the city who was a spine authority in a day or two and discuss Ellen's case with him.

The preliminaries of a long illness are almost always wretched for the patient. Ellen was suffering acutely, she was mystified and shocked, and she was heartick at the hideous possibility she suspected under the young doctor's frankly troubled manner. Joe came in to see her for a few minutes twice a day, her grandfather once, her aunt kept the room clean, and brought her trays she could hardly touch. Fevered, restless, dazed with lack of sleep and with the effect of the medicine that controlled the worst of the pain, she would stare at them dully.

Gradually she reached the second stage, and, if hope died within her then, as to the future, at least she found the present more bearable. Not as a whole, for her soul shrank from the horror of the thought that she might never walk free and young through the garden, and into Main street again.

A few days before Christmas the New York specialist came down, and was friendly and informal to a degree that enchanted Aunt Elsie. He could say little more than Doctor Older. Miss Latimer had done something mysteriously harmful to one of the delicate vertebrae at the very base of the brain. It was an unusual case. The girl quivered into the invalid's invariable question.

"Doctor—do you think—can you give us any idea—it can be cured, can't it?"

"Almost anything can be cured, Doctor Older tells me that you want to be an artist," said the specialist for answer. "Now, there's nothing to prevent you from going right on with your work here. Get out your pencils, and don't bother your head about your back! You're not having so much pain, now—"

"Not unless I move," Ellen faltered, feeling the tears of bitter disappointment press behind her eyes.
Doctor Older immediately began to discuss a sort of harness he was having made for the neck, and when the city man had highly approved this experiment, the two went away. Only Ellen knew the bitter desolation they left behind them; and the long hours in the night she lay sobbing over what in her dark hour she thought the death of hope.

The harness gave her blessed relief, although its ugly brownness, pressing up against her white face, was a hurt to her girlish pride. And on Christmas day, with Joe's help, the doctor moved her down to the dining room, where a wide couch had been placed for her.

After that she came downstairs every day, and Aunt Elsie and Joe helped her tenderly upstairs every night. And there were hours, whole days sometimes between the moods of revolt—and resentment, when she found a new, odd flavor of joy in her life.

Almost every hour something took her thoughts to Gibbs Josselyn and the adventurous day that had been her last day free from pain. At first it had seemed that he must know, that he had a right to know, what the accident had cost her. She longed—ah, how she longed, for his splendid concern and sympathy. There were whole hours when she lay and dreamed of it, his shock, his horror, his visits, and his flowers.

Sometimes the wording of the letter she knew she would not write flitted through her mind. "Dear Mr. Josselyn—I know you will be sorry—something that seems to puzzle the doctors—the pleasant land of counterpane—"

But she did not write. Pride kept her silent. She would not send him the three lines that must buy his friendship. If that was to come to her, it would come. She dared not beg for it.

And honest as she was to the core, Ellen knew that her motive in keeping silent was not quite unmixed. The note might bring him straight to her, it was true. But suppose he did not in the least realize that her life had been crushed and altered in the one brief moment of terror and shock they had laughed over and so quickly forgotten? Suppose he said to himself that he was sorry, and it was a pity and nothing more? Then she would lose not only the future, but the bright and precious memory of the past.

Again, he might respond to the little appeal with all the generous ardor that she knew was in him, waiting to be stirred. He might come straight down to the house in Main street—

To find Aunt Elsie, opening the door, suspicious of his errand, and find the dining room overheated and unaltered, and find Joe's boots oiled and drying by the alight stove, and adding their odor to the other odors—

And to find Ellen, his rosy companion of the furs and the laughter, a small white-faced thing under a patchwork quilt, with brown leather straps under her chin—

Reaching this point in her thoughts, Ellen would give a little shudder. Better that he should never know. Better that she had never crossed his path, or he hers. But for that memorable week-end she might be going to the Yacht club dance with Willa, Bobby Carnival, and the Henshaws tonight, she might be in the Mardi Gras Kermess that was to convulse and enchant the village next week. And summer was coming, a summer without driving and tennis and swimming for Ellen.

She must lie still, the old physical joy in living gone, and the old peace of mind gone, too. For Bobby and the Henshaws seemed changed now, and in the back of her heart and the back of her mind there lingered the disturbing vision that had displaced them: the memory of a cultivated voice; of deep kind eyes, and silver hair; of clever, groomed hands. There lingered the hurtling knowledge that certain doors were closed to Ellen Latimer, that certain lips spoke a language she could not understand, that there was a world, so near her own, where her mere youthfulness and goodness and willingness to learn could win her no place. Other keys were needed for those doors, and through no fault of her own, Ellen had, not those keys.

Mrs. Rose had gone to Bermuda. The check for Ellen's expenses had arrived promptly during the first week of the year, however, and had been the cause of some serious debate in the Latimer house.

Ellen wished to send it back, with a note explaining the circumstances. The warm-hearted Mrs. Rose might show her sympathy in some decided way, might even mention Ellen's sad situation in some quarter through which it would reach Gibbs Josselyn.

But Mrs. Baldwin, quite unsuspecting of this vague thought in her niece's mind, suggested that the check simply be banked for the time when Ellen could use it. No use distressing her generous friend with a tale of

BRITISH INAUGURATE MOVEMENT TO SAVE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

HERTFORD—Strenuous efforts are being made here and in other agricultural districts of England to save the picturesque old-fashioned village blacksmith from passing into oblivion the smith of England today is not "toiling and rejoicing" to draw undue attention to himself, but is "sorrowing" a great deal more than in the days when Longfellow idealized him—all because of the advent of the automobile and the motor tractor.

In their desire to "save" the village blacksmith the Hertfordshire county council members announced recently particulars of a plan designed to keep alive the decaying industry which has been so hard hit by the modern organization of the big manufacturers and their agents who supply standardized parts of farm implements and machinery on lines of mass production. The ministry of agriculture too has become interested in the scheme to prevent the passing of the blacksmith and has agreed to co-operate in the movement.

Special committees appointed to investigate the plight of the smithy have reported that there are many articles in popular demand which cannot be satisfactorily produced by factory methods because of the skill and the handwork of the craftsman which should count more than mere cheapness. With a view of giving the village blacksmith a new lease on life a special exhibit had been arranged for the Herts agriculture show opening early in June where prizes will be awarded for agricultural implements, wrought iron gates, scroll work

12 Years Ago TODAY

From The Daily of June 10, 1913

The following marriage license was issued in the Probate office: William E. Steed to Miss Annie Davis of Trinity.

George Curtis Almon was highly commended by his company for the work that he has carried forward in the casualty insurance line in Colbert and Lauderdale counties.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Dorothy Harlowe Workman to Mr. Earl Phinizy on Wednesday, June 25, at high noon at St. John's Episcopal church.

Mesdames D. D. McGehee, Zuleca West, Frank Davis and Miss Mamie Bethard left today to attend the missionary conference at H. H. Hill.

Looks as if Scopes will have to battle the courts on the theory of "guilty until proven innocent" with Clarence Darrow as his attorney.

Times haven't changed a great deal. There were just as many June weddings twelve years ago as there are today according to the files of the paper.

An optimist is the man who after having punctures in all four wheels glances to the rear of his car with a smile and says, "Well the spare is alright."

Since the Amundsen expedition is failing to demand the public attention through columns of newspaper space it's a pretty good sign that the explorers will be home soon.

Thomas and Oscar will now take the platform in the behalf of the "dear people." Yes we would like to have the issues clearly outlined without the usual trimmings of political bunk.

The millennium will come when politicians cease to kiss all the children in the neighborhood, stop shaking hands with everybody in sight, and carry out a few of the party pledges that they ride into office upon.

One of our friends suggests that it is safer to be president of Mexico than to occupy the position of a college professor. We agree with him both in the matter of dangers incurred and in the salary drawn.

Talk about your Chicago crime waves, our neighboring city of Birmingham seems to be getting a share of the high tide that has been seen in various parts of the country. A few real penalties to the full extent of the law will aid greatly in stopping the mania.

Charles Evans Hughes certainly has little to do when he becomes mixed in the evolution battle looming at Dayton, Tennessee. We cannot help but give utterance to the belief that Charles Evans and William J. will be the only monkeys attending the sideshow.

ATLANTA TO BECOME AIRPORT, WHAT OF OTHER CITIES?

Atlanta is going to be an airport, says the Atlanta Journal. On account of her geographic position Atlanta will soon be one of the most important bases of both the army and the navy, continues the Journal.

Airport! If the Journal hadn't added those facts about the army and navy and thrown in a few aeronautical terms we might have forgotten the subject the Journal was speaking of. We were almost of the belief that "airport" meant something relative to "gasbag," "bubble," nothing but air. Of course Atlanta isn't a city that is built on gas, no city is built on gas or hot air. There must be some solid foundation laid before the period of growth is even started. Atlanta it seems, has had less to build upon than most any city in the South, but despite the tremendous handicap, she has come through on spirit—spirit and finances, not hot air.

How many cities have been built upon hot air in this country. None that we can think of at this time. Lots of people believe that Florida is being built upon a gas bag that has been blown to almost its full capacity by land dealers and all sorts of promoters. Partly the building of Florida has been due to promotion, but Florida has had something behind it, as every other growing section of the country must have. Florida has rich lands, a wonderful climate, transportation systems second to none and a large following of the rich the year round. That is why Florida is building.

Turn towards North Alabama and see what has been accomplished on hot air. Not a thing. Surmise the situation from the real facts in the case and see the vast store of natural resources and possibility that North Alabama has for development. There is no false alarm about the physical possibilities of this land of ours, the climate isn't manufactured nor merely ornamental; we are blessed with the finest climate that a section can possibly offer. The people are working toward a greater unity every day of the year. There is but one thing lacking in this section and that is promotion. Not the kind of promotion that brings to mind a bunch of schemes to get other peoples' money; the something for nothing sort, but men with a far-sighted view into the future, a good sound business judgment of the possibilities that lie here; men who are willing to take the chance by backing North Alabama with their own money and not wait for the money to come from some outside interest. We have to sell ourselves on our own location and possibility before we can sell it to others. It cannot be done through propaganda and hot air; we have the facts and we have to learn them ourselves. Then our section will know an expansion equal if not superior to that of other sections of the southland. Get at the facts, not the hearsay, and help your towns, your county and your section toward the realization of the real wealth that is here.

RESULT OF ROGERS "HIGHWAY DINNER" HAS FOUND NORTH CAROLINA FRIEND

Some weeks ago Senator John Rogers gathered his friends together at Montgomery for the purpose of a discussion of the road situation in Alabama and incidentally to start a move toward an extra session of the state legislature with the possible sanction for the launching of a bond issue that would mean good highways for the state of Alabama.

There are many who are opposed to a bond issue in this state for additional highways; we are not one of the opposition so long as the money goes towards the building of roadways, permanent roadways, and everlasting solution to the road problem for Alabama.

We find that there is another in favor of good roads through the medium of bond authorization. R. A. L. Hyatt, who has been connected with North Carolina road building for the past forty years has the following to say regarding conditions in North Carolina in a recent letter to the editor of the "Southern Home" at Livingston, Alabama:

"Having been one of the first roads and highway officers of North Carolina for the last forty years I know the opposition and struggles good road officials have to meet and overcome. I had the difficult experiences of road work helping construct good roads in Haywood County, North Carolina. We, at first, had to combat many of the best citizens and biggest tax payers of Haywood County. It was a giant task in the beginning. The struggle was long and hard. The opposition to good roads was so great that it almost split the Democratic party in twain in Haywood County, in 1900; but the good road supporters won the fight.

"In my opinion no wiser movement could be made by Governor Brandon than that of calling a special session of the Legislature of Alabama to provide funds to continue the road work in Alabama. Alabama has already built many miles of good roads that are a great credit to Alabama and Alabama's good roads officials. The good work should not stop, but 'go on and on forever.'

"North Carolina has been plodding along at road work doing the best she could, with small means, till 1921. In 1921 North Carolina passed laws giving her State Treasurer and Governor the power to issue bonds for road building, and offer the bonds on the market to the highest bidder. They were first authorized to issue Serial Bonds to the amount of Fifty Million Dollars ($50,000,000.00) in 1921. In 1923 the State Treasurer and Governor were authorized to issue and sell Fifteen Million Dollars ($15,000,000.00) worth of bonds. Again, in 1925, the State Treasurer and Governor were authorized to issue and sell to the highest bidder, Twenty Million Dollars ($20,000,000.00) of bonds. And in addition to these amounts the road fund of North Carolina, during this time, has been supplemented by the sum of Twelve Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($12,500,000.00) by Federal aid, making a total of Ninety-seven Million and Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($97,500,000.00) that has been authorized by the State and Federal aid since 1921.

"Furthermore, most of the counties of North Carolina have supplied funds equal to that furnished by the state and Federal aid, to tie in, or connect together the State Highway and make a complete road system in each county of the state.

"Since 1921, to May 22, 1925, North Carolina has built four thousand five hundred and ninety-one miles of good roads, at a cost of Seventy-nine Million Fifty-seven Thousand Three Hundred and Forty-six Dollars ($79,057,346.00).

"The interest and principal of North Carolina Road Bonds are paid out of gas tax. The gas tax has paid all interest on bonds as it came due to date, and last year a surplus of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) was left in the State Treasurer's office from the gas tax.

"The License Tax is used for maintenance of the roads. This tax has been more than sufficient for the upkeep of the roads. So far the state has not received any other revenue for the maintenance of the roads, and does not expect revenue for this purpose from any other source than the License Tax, as there is no state property tax in North Carolina for roads.

"I am expecting soon to be a citizen of Alabama, having bought property in Sumter County, Alabama, in 1921, in and near Livingston, Alabama. And I am heart and soul for the continuation of building good roads in Alabama.

Alabama has a salubrious climate; has great resources, a great future, and above, and best of all, a good and noble open-hearted, whole-souled citizenship. They are a people who make a stranger feel at home and feel good to be among them.

"Good citizens from all points of the compass will come to your state, buy your fertile lands and be a part of your great commonwealth.

"Register me for more good road bonds and more good roads for Alabama.

"Yours respectfully,

"R. A. L. HYATT,
Waynesville, N. C., May 22, 1925."

Mr. Hyatt has not only shown the people of Alabama through this letter that he is a staunch supporter of road bonds, he has shown them in what manner the best results have been obtained and how the state of North Carolina has gone about the plan that has meant so much to the rapid growth of that section. North Carolina has come from the "backwoods," so to speak, since 1921, the year that the good roads programme was begun in earnest.

Alabama can no doubt work out such a plan and adopt the policy of every road in the state a good road. It takes money to build highways, as the Carolina figures will show. We should get many miles of permanent roadway with the authorization of a $75,000,000 bond issue. We believe that if the plan is placed before the people of Alabama in its full form, with nothing hidden, to stand or fall as its merits may warrant, that the people of the state will gladly give the commission and the state the right to go ahead with the road program. People of this state are tired of only halfway methods. What they want is roads and if they are shown that road building will be started in earnest upon the voting of the issue we do not feel that they will hesitate.

Hartselle News

LOCAL PLANTER PRODUCES HUNDREDS BUSHELS OF BEAN SEED FOR SALE

Oscar Sanders, well known Morgan county planter residing a few miles east of Hartselle has demonstrated what can be accomplished by planting large quantities of Mong, O-Too-Tan and Laredo beans with the view of saving the seed of each for market.

Mr Sanders had for sale the past spring over 800 bushels of these varieties which he readily sold for a fancy price, bringing him over a thousand dollars. In addition he gets the hay extra, which is baled away from the thrasher, and used to supply is needs on the farm, the surplus being readily sold on the local market.

CROPS MAKING WONDERFUL PROGRESS SINCE THE RAINS CAME LAST WEEK

So far as your correspondent has been able to gather, all crops are making wonderful progress since the rains of last week. Cotton especially is doing fine, and no pests are bothering any of the plantings.

Practically every field has been chopped and plowed, and the crop as a whole is clean.

It is indicated by the calls for cane seed that a large acreage will be planted to sorghum this season. Many are sowing for hay in addition to raising to cut for sorghum.

Old planters are of the opinion that the present year so far has been ideal in every respect for planting and growing, and say, that they have never seen all classes of field crops make a better progress.

SIM SIMRELL, WELL KNOWN MORGAN CITIZEN DEAD

Sim Simrell, one of the oldest and best known citizens of this county, died Sunday night in Lawrence County after a lingering illness, superinduced by old age. Mr. Sherrill was a splendid citizen, and spent his entire life in the community where he died.

The funeral services were held at Herring Grave yard last Monday afternoon in the presence of a large number of his life-long friends and relatives, services being conducted by Rev. G. C. Walker of Hartselle.

SPORTSMEN COMMITTEE VISITS BIRMINGHAM

Messrs Walter Poole, Dr. A. M. White, James W. Ashworth and Capt R A Burleson representing the sportsmen's club of Hartselle, went to Birmingham Monday afternoon to confer with some of the sportsmen there relative to the best plans to pursue in making the lake contemplated in the program recently put on foot here. They will also confer with some engineers in that city who have had experience in building dams of the character they propose to erect across Shoal Creek. Immediately upon their return they will begin active organization, and begin the work of making the lake and club house.

APPLE AND PEAR CROP A FAILURE THIS SEASON

The apple and pear crop which are annually very fine in this section, is a failure this season. A large pear orchard owned by Dr. D. W. Day right in the heart of town, and which rarely ever fails to produce hundreds of bushels of fine pears is barren this year. Peaches will be plentiful. Just why apples and pears failed, and peaches and plums are plentiful is quite a mystery.

PERSONALS

Miss Ruby Glasscock is spending the week with relatives and friends at Birmingham.

Mrs. E. E. Hargrove of Decatur, (nee Willie Maude Grice) who for a long time prior to her marriage was one of the faithful attaches of the Farmers and Merchants bank of this city, has been helping the bank out of a rush of business occasioned by sickness among some of the force. The many patrons of the bank were glad to again greet her in her old place if even for a temporary time.

Ollie White, popular clerk in the local postoffice is back from a two weeks vacation and resumed his duties at the postoffice Wednesday.

The many friends of J. M. Patterson will be glad to know that after spending three weeks at Hot Springs, Ark., taking treatment and baths, he has returned to his home at Gilbert La., improved in health.

MICHIGAN DETERMINED TO CURB DRUNKEN DRIVERS

LANSING—A new and drastic "drunken driver" law is now in effect in Michigan. It was enacted by the 1925 legislature at the urge of law enforcement officials and dry organizations.

Based upon the theory that the only effective way of curbing traffic accidents and casualties attributable to drunken driving is to keep intoxicated motorists off the highways, it provides for the mandatory suspension of drivers' licenses. A first offender upon conviction must surrender his drivers' license for at least three months. In addition the court may sentence him to pay a fine of from $50 to $100 and to not more than 90 days' imprisonment. For a second or subsequent offense the driver's license is automatically suspended for at least a year. The additional penalties are a fine of not more than $500, or not more than one year's imprisonment, or both.

Read The Daily's Classified Ad page for most any bargain that you may desire. It is advertised there to 90 days' imprisonment. For a second get the best results.

25 Principal Mineral Products come from L&N Served States

Minerals are the basis of practically every manufactured article—raw materials dug from the earth make possible nearly every article in general use in industry and in the home.

The L. & N.-served South is particularly rich in mineral deposits and particularly well served in transportation facilities for taking them from where they are mined to where they are converted into finished products.

Geological Survey figures show that 25 of the principal minerals—from Aluminum to Zinc, from Iron to Sulphur, from Graphite to Fuller's Earth—are mined in the territory served by this railroad.

These facts furnish further evidence that the health, wealth and happiness of the community and of the nation are directly dependent on the transportation systems.

TIMID ANIMALS SUCCUMB IN CLAMOR OF MODERN ZOO

SEATTLE—Artificiality of surroundings, noise and gasoline fumes from motor traffic are described as the reasons for animals in the Woodland Park zoo here killing themselves and dying from disease. Last season, frightened at a steady stream of automobiles, four deer charged into the corral fence and broke their necks.

"Taken from the quiet surroundings of their native haunts into the noise and gas laden air of the park," said Dr. Gus Knudson, director of the zoo, "the animals lose interest in life and die, if they are not frightened to death."

Handcuff Expert May Test Jail

Is the Decatur jail vulnerable? This question was the topic of conversation on the street today when it became known that "Deimar, the Wizard," heralded as one of the world champion handcuff kings and hypnotist, will attempt to escape from a locked cell in the city jail on Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock if permission is granted.

Deimar comes to the cities for a two day engagement Friday and Saturday at the Airdome fresh from a series of successes in other Southern cities and is being brought here as an added attraction to the regular picture program at the Airdome.

The wizard not only carries a full assortment of his own paraphernalia, but offers $25.00 reward for a pair of handcuffs, shackle or chain that will hold him. He invites any member of his audience to try for the reward.

More Feed And Livestock Needed

Morgan county is shipping in car after car of hay, grain and mill feeds notwithstanding the fact that we have not sufficient animals to utilize grazing lands not suitable for cultivation, and even then many of the animals we have are not being well fed.

It is not too late to plant beans and peas. Practically every acre of corn in the county should be interplanted or broadcasted with either beans or peas. Last year Will Tanner, near Danville, made enough from a few acres of interplanted Ootootan beans, and a few acres planted solid, to buy him a tractor, a complete set of tractor implements and kerosene for this season's use, in addition to all the hay needed at home. The majority of Morgan county farmers are overlooking just enough opportunities every year. Plant peas or beans. All kinds are good and some are better.

Jim Ashworth, of Hartselle, has a registered Holstein cow that is producing as high as 57.5 pounds of milk a day. That is almost seven gallons. He is feeding this cow well and milking her three times a day. We do not expect many cows to produce like that, but if 500 farmers had five cows each that would produce half that well, and would grow most of their feed for them, it would put 500 farmers in good financial condition and the manure and the benefit from the growing of legumes on the land would make 500 farms rich.

A cream check every week and richer land to cultivate are the things a man can promise himself if he will grow an abundance of feed and keep a few high class cows.

The Tennessee Jersey Picnic at Franklin Thursday of this week, is attracting several good farmers from Morgan county.

Sunday Schools Annex Battle From L & N To Keep Pace In City League Circuit, 6-4

The Consolidated Sunday Schools grabbed another victory Tuesday from the Louisville and Nashville advocates to maintain the hot pace race that is being run between the Power company and the Sunday School forces. The seven inning affair was won early and the Sunday schools romped to a 6-4 verdict.

Wright, hurling for the Sunday school clan, was touched in the first inning for a single tally. His team mates started shelling Myers in their half of the initial frame and after scoring a quartet of counters sent Myers to the bench. Donohue took up the hurling duties and fared considerably better allowing the Sunday Schools but two runs through the five innings that he worked.

In the fifth the L. & N. hitting combination gathered together and bunched safeties, chasing three runs across the dish.

The game was a good one despite a lead that the L. & N. was never able to overcome.

The score by innings:
L. & N. 100 030 0-4
Sunday Schools 400 200 x-6
Batteries: Myers, Donohue and Slatten; Wright and Howell.

FLYING AIR PILOTS CONVERSE WITH BASE 110 MILES AWAY
CHICAGO—Telephone communication between airplane pilots flying 4,000 feet in the air and radio station WLS was maintained clearly over a distance of 110 miles during the military show here recently. When the army flyers descended at Chanute Field the reception was still strong, indicating that intermittent talking might have been continued over a greater distance.

The previous record for communication between a land station and an airplane by radio was 40 miles. Spectators at the show were listeners in during the tests, the radio station re-broadcasting the conversations. This was another feat said by radio engineers to have been successfully performed for the first time.

The army planes used a 50 watt master oscillator sending set, with three 50 watt tube as oscillator modulator and speech amplifier in addition to a 5 watt amplifier. The radio station used neodyne receiving set while the army men used an army 8-tube super heterodyne for receiving. A two pound lead weight held down the antenna. Within the city limits the planes had a 50 feet wire over the side, which was extended to a 200 foot aerial as they got farther away.

The officer in the front seat of the airplane by means of ear phones could hear both conversation, the talking of his companion and the conversation from the land station.
